Your child is welcome here

A house for all. Our educational work stands under this motto. Everyone is welcome here.

The children - in their diversity and uniqueness - are our focus. They can explore the world at Biopolis at their own pace, educate themselves and get involved in shaping daycare life.

The educational staff enter into relationships with the children, accompany and support them in their daily lives and on their educational path.

We work inclusively and needs-oriented.

What is important to us?

We want all children to feel at ease with us. Their various interests and needs form the basis for our educational work.

The children can choose between differently themed rooms. They decide for themselves where in the house or garden they want to play and which activities they want to take part in.

In addition to role-play, sports, dance & music and construction rooms, the children have an atelier, a children's restaurant, a library, retreat rooms and the atrium as a central meeting place. A partnership with the children's parents and families, based on trust, is very important to us as a prerequisite for the children's optimal development.

We would like all children to have the best possible start with us. A member of the educational team will work with you and your child to create a gentle settling-in period. You and your child will get to know the team and the day-to-day routine of the Centre step by step. The length of the settling-in period depends on your child's needs. Every child is different.

To help make the start easier, we offer dates for visits for you and your child beforehand.

Linguistic and cultural diversity are very valuable resources for us, which enrich daily life at the Centre.

We look forward to welcoming you and your children!
